firm behind what was then the nation's largest foreclosure firm, Charles H. Gerdes Realty Services, benefitted from nearly $600 million in taxpayer-backed loans, and still received a $1.2 billion chunk of the $8 billion remaining in the Troubled Asset Relief Program. Lawyers representing Maryland, New Jersey, and other states in connection with the foreclosure fraud scandal worked with the Journal to shed light on that reality, and to demand a further investigation from the Justice Department, they said this week. The investigation found that Gerdes Realty, owned by Sun Capital Markets, was still receiving $1.2 billion of TARP funds after being singled out by the Securities and Exchange Commission in February for inflating its "value" from $2.4 billion to $9.8 billion. The SEC demanded that Sun return the funds in a Feb. 25 letter, though the Journal was not able to determine whether Sun did. Currently, Sun is in bankruptcy, putting the firm's assets up for sale. In an Oct. 7 bankruptcy filing, Gerdes listed more than $1 billion in liabilities. The firm said in its bankruptcy filings that it owed more than $2.1 billion to "underwriters, lenders, agencies, and other creditors." In an Oct. 8 press release, the Justice Department said it was "disappointed" that Sun Capital and its co-founder, Carl C. Icahn, continue to receive federal funds, and that the government will " 09e8f5149f
